In addition, the focus is also on the use of biogas, energy storage and energy savings. Bulbaai conducted an extensive research in Curaçao.

What is Curacao's energy policy?

In 2009, Curacao developed an energy policy document, which sets out general guidance and governing principles for further study of energy issues.⁴ It suggests the goal of reducing energy consumption by 40% by 2020 and encourages the investigation of combining wind power with storage to provide 100% of the island's energy needs.

How can Curaçao become sustainable in 2033?

To make Curaçao fully sustainable in 2033, the production of solar and wind energy is of great importance, as is proper energy storage. Wind turbines and solar panels play an important role in this. If traditional power generators are still necessary, then the use of biogas is a more sustainable choice.

Does Curacao need electricity?

Like many island nations, Curacao is highly dependent on imported fossil fuels (more than 95% of the island's electricity is generated using petroleum-based fuels), leaving it vulnerable to global oil price fluctuations that directly impact the cost of electricity.

How many wind turbines are there in Curacao?

Curacao features two of the oldest but most productive wind energy installations in the Caribbean. The first installation, a 12-turbine, 3-MW facility, was placed in service at Tera Kora in 1993.¹⁵ This was followed by an 18-turbine, 9-MW installation at Playa Kanoa in 2000.
