Are solar panels a scam?

That is, of course, also a scam. To protect yourself from clean energy scams: Know that "free" or "no cost" solar panel offers are scams. The federal government does not install solar systems in homes for free. If you're considering whether solar energy is right for you, check out the Department of Energy's guide for homeowners and learn more.

Are 'upselling scams' causing a surge in solar panel fraud?

However, homeowners making the most of the Government's solar panel drive have increasingly fallen victim to conmen. Citizens Advice has warned of a surge in solar panel fraud, particularly "upselling scams" in which cold-callers convince customers to upgrade technology they already have to meet fabricated legal "standards".

Are energy firms a scam?

But with energy prices rising, and a slew of government initiatives and advice from firms, it's easy to get confused. Scammers can be very convincing and, to make matters worse, we've found that energy firms can send emails that occasionally look like scams.

What should I do if a solar business is a scam?

Protect your personal information. Don't respond to unexpected requests online or on social media for your name, address, or other personal information to "see if you qualify." At best, this is someone generating leads to sell, not actual solar businesses. At worst, they're scammers trying to steal your identity.

Do solar companies ask for big cash payments?

Some firms ask for big cash payments up front for solar panels that never arrive. In April, renewable energy firm Daylight Energy went bust, owing customers over £1m in deposits, all of which was unsecured. While some customers have managed to recoup their money, many have not.

Are 'fake' solar companies a scam?

Beware of any company asking you to make a big deposit before they have completed their installation. This is one of the most common ways 'fake' solar companies have targeted consumers - whereby they take a hefty deposit and then never turn up to carry out the installation. This is common solar scam.
