Are solar panels a scam?

One of the first signs of a potential scam is unsolicited approaches or door-to-door sales. A reputable solar panel company does not typically use these tactics and instead is more likely to rely on referrals or marketing campaigns. As we mentioned before, another red flag is excessive discounts or too-good-to-be-true offers.

Is home solar a scam?

Scams are a blight on the solar industry, but that doesn't mean home solar itself is a scam. Here are some tricks to avoiding solar scams, finding reputable installers, and enjoying the benefits of home solar. If you only listen to one sales pitch, it can be easy to get sucked into a scam.

Are 'fake' solar companies a scam?

Beware of any company asking you to make a big deposit before they have completed their installation. This is one of the most common ways 'fake' solar companies have targeted consumers - whereby they take a hefty deposit and then never turn up to carry out the installation. This is common solar scam.

What should I do if a solar business is a scam?

Protect your personal information. Don't respond to unexpected requests online or on social media for your name, address, or other personal information to "see if you qualify." At best, this is someone generating leads to sell, not actual solar businesses. At worst, they're scammers trying to steal your identity.

Are solar leases and PPAs a scam?

No, not all leases and PPAs are scams. However, they seem to be a breeding ground for deceptive and predatory practices, including the old "government is paying people to go solar" scam. Related reading: Solar Leases vs. Solar Loans vs. Solar PPAs
